For anyone who likes their history, London's transport network has plenty of curious, lesser-known quirks in its back catalogue. Lately, we've delved into the Tube - the world's oldest underground railway network - and the unique tiling that varies between stations, as well as the famous stop that commuters can no longer use.

Next up we have the now-defunct train route that for nearly 90 years had one purpose - to transport dead bodies out of the city centre. And at up to 2,000 a year at its peak, there were a lot of them.

The Necropolis Railway was in operation from 1854 to 1941, and ferried corpses almost daily from London's Waterloo station along a 23-mile direct route to the newly-built Brookwood Cemetery near Woking in Surrey. It was a solution to the grim reality that London's graveyards had run out of space. While the capital's population was exploding, so was its death toll.

"It was pioneering; it was revolutionary," writes historian John Clark, who authored The Brookwood Necropolis. "As far as I know, it was the first use of the railway for a dedicated service from one private station, directly into a cemetery at the other end."

Epidemic

Between 1800 and 1851, London's population had more than doubled, rapidly increasing from nearly one million to almost two and a half million over just 51 years - and disease was rife. All the usual suspects were flaring up around the city in an era yet to discover mass-vaccination: typhoid, measles and smallpox among them.

In 1848, a cholera outbreak claimed the lives of more than 14,600 people in a single year, making the shortage of burial space in the capital critical. It became nigh impossible to dig any new graves without disturbing existing ones, resulting in bodies, particular those of the poor, being left to rot in the streets.

The only solution, authorities reasoned, was to construct a new cemetery which was far enough out of London's bloating borders, and big enough to handle the ever-rising number of corpses that were inevitably to come. That, and a cheap, efficient way of getting them there.

The cemetery

At the time, London only had about 300 acres of burial ground, spread around various churches across the city - most of which were full. In 1852, the London Necropolis Company was established by the government to oversee the construction of Brookwood, which by 1854, at 1,500 acres in size, was the largest cemetery in the world. To this day, it remains the UK's largest, and one of Europe's.

One of the masterminds behind the concept was politician Sir Richard Broun, who rather poetically described his vision in 1851 thusly: "A grand and befitting gathering place for the metropolitan mortality of a mighty nation; a last home and bed of rest where the ashes of the high and low, the mighty and the weak, the learned and the ignorant, the wicked and the good, the idle and the industrious, in one vast co-mingled heap may repose together."

Notes for Iphigenia Dodd:

Her baptismal record at St Andrew Holborn is a bit curious. It reads "Iphegenia Daughter of Charles Dodd by Rachel Lenton, Saffron Hill"

A current map of London shows Saffron Hill as a street in the parish of St. Andrew Holborn. This is near Fleet Street.

Another interesting thing about her Christening record is that it shows the christening of a number of children who have no parents. They are listed as living at various workhouses.

Having found this transcript in the same week as seeing the musical Oliver, based on Oliver Twist, by Charles Dickens I was surprised to see the direct correlation of the two. In the play, Oliver, an orphan, lives in a workhouse. The names of the places in the play happen to be within the parish of St Andrew Holborn, London. RCW

Langdale's wine and spirits warehouse on Holborn Hill is burned by the rioters and the Newgate prisoners escape up Holborn when the prison is taken (Barnaby Rudge). Mrs. Gamp lived at Kingsgate Street, High Holborn (Martin Chuzzlewit). Traddles lived on Castle Street, Holborn (David Copperfield). Fagin's den of thieves is located at Saffron Hill, a notorious criminal district, in Holborn (Oliver Twist). Bleeding Heart Yard is located in Holborn (Little Dorrit)

A historical look at Iphigenia:

<http://www.pantheon.org/articles/i/iphigenia.html>

Iphigenia

by Rachel Gross and Dale Grote

Iphigenia is best known as the daughter Agamemnon, leader of the Greek forces at Troy, had to sacrifice in order to appease Artemis. Agamemnon, or perhaps one of the troops in the Greek force of Menelaus (the brother of Agamemnon) offended Artemis, the virgin goddess of the hunt either by killing one of her sacred animals and/or by boasting immoderately that his hunting skill exceeded even that of Artemis. Artemis sent a contrary wind, which held the Greek fleet in the bay of Aulis, where it had assembled before sailing to Troy. The prophet Calchas divined that the daughter of Agamemnon would have to be sacrificed to atone for the offence. Agamemnon then summoned Iphigenia from home under the ruse that she was to be married to Achilles. When the sacrifice was about to be made, however, Iphigenia is miraculously transported to Tauris, a city on the Black Sea, and an animal sent in her place.

It is interesting, and perhaps significant, that the story of Iphigenia's sacrifice is not mentioned in the Iliad or the Odyssey, despite there being ample opportunity and reason to do so. The earliest source for the story is in the report we have of the lost Homeric Cypria (which is usually thought to date one to two centuries after the Homeric epics). In the next source, Aeschylus' play The Libation Bearers (c. 460 BCE), Clytemnestra, the wife of Agamemnon, mentioned the killing of Iphigenia as part of her justification for killing Agamemnon upon his return to Mycene after the Trojan War. The two plays of Euripides, Iphigenia at Aulis, and Iphigenia at Tauris, are centered on the story of Iphigenia. The story also gets minor mention in Hesiod's Catalogue of Women and Eoiae 71, which reports that she was changed into the goddess Hecate instead of being sacrificed.

The complexity of Iphigenia's story is present in many of the heroines of Greek mythology. Many of them appear either to have been goddesses in earlier times--which powers they have lost in the historical period--or are so similar to known goddesses that they appear to be hardly more than a different name for the same divinity. Iphigenia is so closely associated with Artemis, that her name is frequently seen as a mere epithet for Artemis (H.J. Rose p. 119.), which justifies the suspicion that Iphigenia might have originally been another competing virgin goddess of the hunt, whose character and functions were subsumed by Artemis.

The marriage license of her daughter, Phoebe Wheattall to John Delaforce refers to her as Elizabeth Wheattall rather than as Iphegenia.

John Fleurriet Delaforce who was born 8th September 1807 in Tooley Street, Southwark had married Phoebe Wheatall, daughter of Benjamin & Elizabeth Wheatall of Baddeley House, Blackheath on 26 August 1842 at St. Saviours Church, Southwark. John was known to be a son of John Delaforce born in 1781 in London.

His monumental inscription reads:

Benjamin J. Wheattall, Died Sept 15, 1845, Aged 30 years, 9 months & 3 days,
"How sweet to stand when tempest tear the / Main on the firm cliff and mark the / Seamans toil not that another's danger / Sooths the soul but from / Such toil how

FROM HELEN FINK'S RECORDS:

This was sent to me in June 2001 by Marj Halsey. I recognize this to be information that was provided to Helen Fink by my grandfather Harrison Wheattall. Helen was a good friend of my Wheattall grandparents and often visited at times that I was at my grandparents' home. Robert C. Wheattall

"One of the older residents of Centerville told me when he was young there was a sign board in Centerville pointing towards the east, "EnglishSettlement." Besides the Harrison's and Morris' there were some others who came, Rigby's, Barnsdall's and Wheattall's. Some married into the Harrison family. Henry and Benjamin Wheattall were farmed out to bound out to ship master when they were young. They crossed the Atlantic Ocean 16 times. The story goes that they came to Rome Township to see an old sailor by the name of Stucky.

While they were here their ship sailed so they came back. Benjamin was calling on Benjamin Harrison one night to see his daughter, Betsy, and stayed all night. The next morning he was found dead in bed. Henry married Elizabeth Harrison, daughter of Richard Harrison. The name of the ship the Wheatall's sailed on was Great Eastern"

The beginning section of this pamphlet is titled "CORONER'S INQUESTS, 1807-1854". I was idly browsing through them, semi-amused at their statements about causes of death - instead of "natural causes", they would say he "died by visitation of God in a natural way and not otherwise." Then I noticed that I'm reading about someone named Benjamin Wheatall, who apparently died on 15 Sep 1845, at the home of Benjamin Harrison. It doesn't say how old he was, but they decided that he died "by the visitation of God and not otherwise."

2. HENRY R² WHEATTALL (Benjamin¹) was born on 10 Aug 1819 in London, England. He died on 28 May 1891 in Rome Twp, Crawford County, Pennsylvania, USA. He married (1) ELIZABETH HARRISON, daughter of Richard Harrison and Mary Frankland, on 25 Dec 1845 in Crawford County, PA, USA. She was born on 03 Mar 1823 in England. Notes for Henry R Wheattall:
Vroman, June 4

Henry Wheatall Sr. died last Thursday. His death was quite sudden, although not wholly unexpected, as he had been troubled with heart disease for the last two or three years. Mr. Wheatall was born in England, and in his younger days was a sailor. He followed that vocation for a number of years before coming to this country. He was one of the first settlers in this section, and lived about fifty years on the farm where he died. He was a good neighbor, honest and industrious, and his old age was made comfortable by the result of toil and economy in early life. He was also blessed with a cheerful disposition and invariably greeted his friends with a merry twinkle of the eye, if not a hearty laugh.

Family information about Henry Wheatall that has been told to Robert C Wheatall:
Henry came to Crawford county from England with a brother Ben. The story about them coming to western Pennsylvania to see an old Pirate by the name of "Stucky" has no written record nor the Ship they came on. The story of the clipper ship "the Great Eastern" a sister ship of the "Great Northern". The story of them missing the ship in Philadelphia then the ship was lost at sea on the return trip. We do have Henrys Watch which is a chain drive rather than a gear drive. There is no key to wind it. A borrowed key did wind it up and it ran for a short time. In 1998 his tombstone is barely readable, I believe it says that he died at 71Y 9M and 18 days with a legible death date of May 28, 1891.

It is doubtful that Henry sailed on the Great Eastern. This ship was floated in 1858. In 1865-6 when it was used to lay the Transatlantic cable it was the largest ship afloat. At this time Henry was farming in Crawford County, PA.

Henry was christened on Sept. 5, 1819 London, Saint Andrew Undershaft, London, England per International Genealogical Index.

St Andrew Undershaft is also known as St Mary Axe.

Wikipedia:

St Andrew Undershaft is a Church of England church located at St Mary Axe, in Aldgate ward of the City of London, near the Lloyd's Building. It is a rare example of a City church that has managed to escape both the Great Fire of London and the Second World War bombing[1].

St. Andrew Undershaft, commonly St. Mary Axe,[sic] on the North side of Leadenhall Street, so called from a long Maypole, or Shaft, which used to stand, or be set up in the Street, before the Church Door, every May Day, which was higher than the Steeple, and consequently the Church was under the Shaft. It is also called St. Mary Axe, or Nax, because of the Sign of an Axe which did hang over against the end thereof; and under this Appellation it's dedicated to the Honour of the Virgin Mary, as is the other to the Apostle St. Andrew. This Parish contains about 230 fine Houses,

New York Cyclone

Windstorm Kills Five and Makes Many People Homeless

Buffalo, Sept 28. - It is believed the damage done by a cyclone in Tonawanda and vicinity will exceed $100,000. Many people are homeless, and several are now under the care of physicians as a result of injuries sustained during the brief visit of the wind. Its first appearance was at St. Catharines, Ont., where great damage to property was done. It next struck the neighboring town of Merritton, where five persons were killed and many seriously injured. The following persons were killed at Merritton:

Clara O'Neill, an employee of Lincoln Paper mills; Mrs. John Bickley, killed on the sidewalk; Miss Frankie Moffatt, Maud O'Neill, James McCarthy. the injured are Jennie Nestor, Rox Bradley, a son of Samuel Smith, Hand broken; Arhtur Bradley, C. Murray, Ed Doyle, Niagara Central railroad employee; Bessie Kerr, legs broken; Willie H. Wilson.

When the storm was first observed at Tonowanda, it was descending toward the Niagara river near the head of Little island. The first object struck was Fussett & Bellenger's lumber yard near the Tonawanda and Grand Island ferry. It is estimated that about 50,000 feet of boards went into the river.

On Niagara street the residences of Mrs. Eliza Henzler, J. K. Patton and Charles Rech were unroofed, thier fronts crushed in and the barns ripped to pieces. The house and barn of County Committeeman, E. H. Rodgers, Jr., on Adams street, and the house of George Gipp, opposite, were damaged.

The Murray school lost its cupola and part of its roof. The house of Justice of the Peace Wheatall, on Wheeler street, was also badly damaged. On Broad street the houses suffering hte most were those of Michael Balding, Deville Hosmer, William Schwartz and August Herman. The Morgan Street Methodist Episcopal church was badly damaged, and the Yetley and Merehn homes, on Fletcher street, were almost razed to the groun

On Franklin street the Bernhardt, Eggerts, Shad, Lease and Friedlien homes were a mass of wreckage. The Hallerd and Stegner homesteads were severely damaged. George Post's home on Fuller avenue was leveled to the ground, as was that of Frank Mye on Delaware street. John Riesterer's home on Delaware street was unroofed, and the Meyer's schoolhouse is a wreck.

The cyclone blazed a path right across Grand Island. The path is 200 yards wide, and in it there is not a tree left standing.

Buell's Corners.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Hopkins started for Michigan Tuesday, to visit their daughter. They contemplate being gone six weeks.

John Sloane started for Canada, Tuesday morning on a visit to his family and friends.

Mrs. Joseph Stokes and son, of West Virginia, are calling on her daughter and many friends in this locality, which is her old home.

Fred Morris, one of our promising young townsmen, visited the White City. From there he concluded to go to the Pacific coast and when last heard from was well that way.

Benjamin Wheatall was in town during election week. He lives near Buffalo, N. Y. The congregation of the U. B. church is holding a series of meetings at the Oil Creek chapel.

Harvey Campbell and William Morris are running their saw mills on nearly full time.

John Martin of Tidioute, was visiting his daughters and many friends at this vicinity last week. Jerry Toohey, of Buell, has sold his farm to Clark Hilliker, of Athens township. Consideration private.

Notes for Henry Richard Wheattall:

Henry Wheattall obituary, Titusville Herald, 28 Oct 1930, p2

Henry Wheattall, Aged 80 Years, Enjoyed Wide Acquaintance in Eastern Crawford

Funeral on Wednesday

Herny Wheattall, aged 80 years, a pioneer resident of Rome township, passed away at 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning at his residence, 405 May avenue, following serious illness of several years.

Mr. Wheattall was born in Rome township on October 21, 1850, passing his 80th birthday a week ago today. Practically all of his life had been spent in the vicinity of Vrooman, where he was engaged in farming for many years.

As a young man, however, Mr. Wheattall followed the oil business for a number of years, working in the Clarion and Bradford fields. He has also worked at various times in the local fields. As a Rome township farmer he was best known, however, and he enjoyed a wide acquaintance throughout eastern Crawford as a man of sterling character and strict integrity.

Several years ago Mr. Wheattall retired from active work and moved to Titusville, having apartments for a time in the Arcade block, Diamond street, and later moving to the residence on May avenue. He was a member of the Church of Christ of Titusville.

Mr. Wheattall was twice married, his first wife being Margaret Delilah Gilson, who passed away on May 9, 1898. On December 21, 1910, he married to Mrs. Lillian Brookwater, who survives him with the following children by the first marriage: Herman Wheattall of Titusville, Mrs. J. P. Harrison and Harry Wheattall of Vrooman, and Mrs. I. J. Peterson of Warren. Two children died in infancy and there are three grandchildren. Mr. Wheattall was the last of a family of seven children and he lived to the greatest age.

A prayer service will be conducted at the home, 405 May avenue, Wednesday at 2 p.m. and funeral services will be conducted from the Wesleyan Methodist church, East Spruce street, at 2:30 o'clock, with Rev. H. L. Grimes of Gresham, officiating. The interment will be made in the Henderson cemetery, north of the city.

Monumental Inscription at Union Cemetery, "Blessed Are The Dead Who Die In The Lord".

The Crawford County Genealogy article notes a third marriage for Henry, but was very vague. Norman Wheatall tells me that he is aware that this mystery marriage was to Harry Kerr's grandmother. Apparently, it was ended with a divorce quickly after their marriage.

Norman also remembers his grandfather as having "Milk Legs" and had to keep his legs bandaged.

The Wed, Oct 29, 1930 Meadville Tribune Republican obituary reads:

Death of Henry Wheatall

Henry Wheatall, aged 80 years, died Monday at his home in Titusville. He was born in Rome township October 21, 1850, and most of his life was spent in the vicinity of Vrooman. In his earlier days he was employed in the oil business, working in the Clarion and Bradford fields. Mr. Wheatall retired from active work several years ago and located in Titusville. He was twice married, his first wife dying May 9, 1898. His second wife, to whom he was married December 21, 1910 survives him, with three children born to the first wife. He was a member of the Church of Christ, Titusville, and a man of sterling character and district integrity. A prayer service will be held at the home at 2 o'clock this afternoon with further services in the Wesleyan Church at 2:30. Interment in the Henderson Cemetery north of Titusville.

Marriage License of Henry R. Wheatall & Martha M. Kerr, #6819, Docket 8, page 150, Crawford County Courthouse, 31 August 1899.

This shows the death dates of their respective spouses, Henry Wheatall's wife on May 8, 1897 and Martha Kerr's husband on January 25, 1895.

Both Henry and Martha were living in Rome Twp, Crawford County, PA at the time of their marriage license application.

While it doesn't show on the application, the microfiche at the Crawford County Courthouse shows that Henry and Mary were married on 7 September 1899 by S.E. Winger, Minister of the Gospel.

Their marriage ended in divorce that was granted on 10 October 1910. This document shows that Mary abandoned Henry with no just cause on May 28, 1908.

This document shows testimony that Clyde Kerr, Mary's son by her prior marriage, wanted his mother to come and take care of him and his household since his wife was ill. Mary left Henry to take care of Clyde Kerr's family.

Testimony was provided by Herman Wheatall, Harrison Wheatall, and Evaline Small.

On the marriage license application she is referred to as Martha M. Kerr.

In the divorce documents she is Mary M. Wheatall.

I did not find an obituary for Margaret Delilah Wheatall in the 11 May 1898 Titusville Herald. I did find this article about her husband, Henry R. Wheatall:

Frisky Equines Frighten People and Wreck Vehicles

At an early hour Tuesday morning as R. H. Wheatall of Cherrytree township was driving into the city a backhold strap brake broke on Cherrytree hill just above Theobald's brewery and the vehicle running forward on the horse's heels caused a runaway that for a time threatened to result seriously.

Mr. Wheatall was fortunately able to jump from the buggy before the animal had gotten beyond his control and escaped with a few bruises. The horse dashed up Franklin street at racing speed and narrowly escaped collision with a number of vehicles before he was finally stopped at John Eason's City mills. The buggy and harness were badly damaged.

In the Titusville Herald on 13 May 1898 but I found the following:

The infant child of H. R. Wheatall of Cherrytree township died and was buried Thursday afternoon in the grave with its mother who was interred at the Henderson cemetery Wednesday.

I spoke with Harry Kerr at the Morris reunion in September of 2004. I asked him about the family story that my great grandfather, Henry Wheatall had married his grandmother Kerr. He said that that story was true.

When I asked him what his grandmother's maiden name was he said he thought it was Hotchkiss. He remembered visiting people by the name of Hotchkiss in the Union City area when he was young but didn't remember much more than this.

Notes for Lillian Belle Wittman:

On the 1910 Census Lillian Brookwater is a widow with one child. She was born in PA, her father in Germany and mother in New York.

Terrance Johnson has the Wittman family tree posted as an ancestral file at www.familysearch.org. He lists Lillian as marrying Henry Asa Adams in 1876, but she was only seven at that time. I don't think this date could be correct.

The marriage license for Henry Wheattall and Lillian Brookwater is at the Crawford County Courthouse, License #12212, Docket 12, p 291. It was made on 21 December 1910.

At the time of the application Lillian Brookwater was a resident of Centerville, Crawford County, PA. She was age 50 on 13 Feburay 1910. Her occupation was listed as NONE.

From the microfiche: Their marriage is noted as being on 27 December 1910 by P. F. DeLancey, Minister.

On 12 November 1931 when Henry Wheattall's will was registered at the Crawford County Courthouse Lillian Wheattall resided at 43 College Street, Akron, Ohio.

I got this message on my family tree today - thought you might be interested!

The next place I found Lillian (after Henry died) is in a City Directory in Akron, OH in 1931...

then I found her in Find-a-Grave; Ted K posted a memorial, it says she married AGAIN, to Don E. Hopkins on 11 Jul 1931 in Cleveland, then died in Akron on 26 Jan 1933. I relayed all this to the person who messaged me. And she's buried in Sunnyside, where my whole family is buried - maybe I'd better go check her out!

Hello there! By searching a few family trees, I came across a few hints given up by means of YOUR tree! I am working on a Bookwalter family tree.. and my 2nd great grandfather's brother, William H "Berkwater", was my latest topic of studies. I ordered his Civil War pension file & found that he left his wife & children for a "Lillian B Whittman" of Crawford County. She had recently left her first husband, and apparently she had a "thing" going on with my 2nd great grand uncle. Nonetheless, he died in Jan of 1910, and I couldnt find ANYTHING else on her, until I came across your obituary for Henry Wheattall. I'm always hesitant to add information from other trees, but you have good sources! Do you know what became of Lillian after Henry Wheattall died??? Hope to hear back from you! Thanks for your time!

Hi Bob, thank you so much for writing me back! Yes, Worthington is "almost" a little "suburb" of Butler, haha. That's where we do all of our shopping! All my life, I've been interested in genealogy, but, this last couple years, I dove into it & I just can't get enough of it, haha. It was mainly fueled by not knowing where MY last name came from. That has been figured out & now it's all the fun stuff- siblings of direct relations, etc.

That's where Lillian falls in. William "Brookwater" came from Clarion County. Joshua BUCKWALTER and Cathrin Allshouse were his parents. He & two of his brothers fought in the Civil War, enlisting in Clarion County, with Pennsylvania Vol Inf 105th Co C. The youngest child of the family was my 2nd great grandfather, John S Bookwalter, born in 1861. I ordered all of their pension files & military files (William, Francis & Thomas) and I was amazed as I was reading through affidavits & depositions with the family's uncertainty of their last name!! A sister thought it was BERK, William changed his to BERKWATER after the war, the rest of them all went with BOOKWALTER (which is how it was handed down to me).

William H Berkwater married Sarah Mays in 1872. She died in 1874 & he married her sister Cynthia in 1875. They have seven children together. Then in 1900, I think, he is away logging in Centerville & is injured. A then married Lillian (Whitman) Adams takes him in and takes care of him. Soon after, her husband, Henry Adams, leaves her & she winds up marrying my 2nd great grand uncle. Apparently, he tells her HIS marriage is not legit because the Justice of the Peace's license expired two days before his marriage to Cynthia! Nonetheless, they are "married" in 1904 and then he dies in January of 1910. That's where she goes on to marry Henry Richard Wheattall.

I ordered her death certificate & it is signed by this Don E Hopkins, but, I can't seem to find ANYTHING out about him.

In the deposition of Lillian, she states when William Bookwalter died in Austinburg OH, she took his body back to Centerville to be buried, but there was no mention about a memorial. I know none of his family attended the funeral. Two of his sons came to identify the body, but, I think they had words with Lillian, so they left.

Boy, I would LOVE to see a picture of this mystery woman!! I've never even seen a picture of him.. or his wife, for that matter.

As far as Lillian's information goes, she was born in 1859 (both the pension file and the death certificate say that). Her marriage to Henry Adams was 9/29/1876 in Crawford County, PA (pension file states this). They divorced 10/4/1901. She married William "Brookwater" on 2/1/1904 in Rome, Oneida, NY. He died 1/8/1910. Lillian's parents were John Whitman (b 1820, Germany) and Olive Higby (b 1822, PA).

That is all I have on her "yet", haha. I'll keep you posted if anything new comes up, though!
